

How to Correct a Name on a Turkish Flight Booking

Booking a flight is usually a straightforward process but even small mistakes—like a misspelled name—can create unnecessary stress. If you've booked a ticket with a Turkish airline and noticed an error in the passenger name, don't panic. Fixing it is often possible if you act quickly and follow the correct steps.

The first thing to understand is that airlines take passenger names very seriously. Your ticket must match your passport or official identification exactly. Even a minor typo can cause issues during check-in or boarding. That's why correcting the name as soon as you notice the mistake is crucial.

Start by reviewing the airline's name correction policy. Most Turkish airlines allow minor changes such as fixing spelling errors, adding a missing letter, or correcting formatting issues. However, completely changing the passenger to a different person is generally not allowed. Policies can vary depending on the ticket type, so always read the terms and conditions provided at the time of booking.

Next, contact customer support. This is often the fastest and most reliable way to request a correction. You can usually reach them via phone, email, or live chat. Be ready to provide your booking reference number and a copy of your
